I've been a-wand'ring all this night and the best part of the day.
But when I come back home again, I will bring you a branch of May.
A branch of May I bring you here, and at your door I stand.
It's just a sprout that's well budded out by the work of nature's hand.

[Refrain]

I'll bring you a branch of May to share, I'll bring you a branch of May.
And when I come back home again, I will bring you a branch of May.

My song is done, I must be gone, no longer can I stay;
God bless you all, both great and small, and send you a branch of May.

[Refrain]

Music: “Thank You for Your Life - in gratitude and memory” Unicorn Choir
(words and music, Dan Weymouth) Dan Weymouth, Director
Bethany Riddle, Accompanist

So many lost, so many tears. Sometimes we wonder how to continue.
But then we remember you were with us, for just a while,
a little while, but still a while, and so we say

[Refrain]

Thank you for your life. Thank you for the gifts that you brought us.
Thank you for your light, and the love your living has taught to us.
Thank you for your life; we remember.

And now you're gone, and we are here. And we will have to carry forward.
And we will have to find what you can give us.

You had a light, a precious light, we hold the light, and so we say

[Refrain]

Everyone's a wonder, and even in our darkest days,
we can hold the light if we remember.

[Refrain]

We remember. We need to remember.
